The Shree Shelri Drugdra School at Saldang / Dolpo / Nepal

School history

The school is named "Shree Shelri Drugdra" from the holy mountain called "crystal mountain" and from a flying dragon "Drugdra".

The school was founded in 1999 by Adelheid

Dönges from Munich and Karma Dondhup Lama from Saldang.

The first structure was built in 1999, for 33 students and 2 teachers.

The second phase of construction took place in 2004, currently used today.

In 2006, the school opened 2 new classes for older students.

Actually the school consists of:

75 children

8 teachers

1 kindergarden

1 nursery

6 classes

Location of the school

The villages of Saldang are located in Upper Dolpo, region of high plateau at an altitude of 4000 m. They are located close to the Tibetan border in NW Nepal. The inhabitants are called Dolpo-Pa and live on one side from the traditionnal agriculture (barley and buckwheat growing, goat, sheep and yak breeding) and on the other side from the trading with Tibet.

Yaks are used for transportation and give milk, butter, wool, meat and combustible material to help villagers.
